DETAILED ACTION

1. Applicant's election without traverse of Species A and claims 1-3 in Paper No. 8 is acknowledged.

Specification

2. The disclosure is objected to because of the following informalities:
 - On page 2, line 20, the word "upto" should be changed to " up to."
 - On page 3, line 4, the word "use" should be changed to "used."
 - On page 9, line 22, the word "To" should be deleted.
 - On page 9, line 26, "earthquake" is spelled as a single word and not as two separate words.
 - On page 11, the use of the plural form of the word "fuel" is improper in the context of the document because of its use as a collective noun.Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claims 1-3 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. The claims, as written, do not set forth any steps involved in the method and it is unclear what the method is intending to encompass this use is actually practiced. The claims are generally narrative and indefinite, failing to conform with current U.S. practice. They appear to be a literal translation into English from a foreign document and contain idiomatic errors. For example, it is unclear what is meant by "method of treating a large scale structural body" in claim 1 and by "relaxing an impact of the large scale structural body" in claim 3?

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent 6,198,787 B1 to Hasegawa et al. (see Figs. 9 and corresponding parts of the specification, as well as the claims). Hasegawa discloses a method of handling an internal structure of a nuclear reactor utilizing a receptacle, such as a container or a cask. Said container is lifted outside of the nuclear reactor building through an opening in said building (see Abstract). Hasegawa discloses the details of his method in his claims. Specifically, he discloses his method of handling an internal structure of a nuclear reactor comprising: 1) lifting and inserting a receptacle into a nuclear reactor building through an opening at the upper portion of the nuclear reactor building; 2) inserting said internal structure in said receptacle so that said receptacle surrounds said internal structure; and 3) lifting said internal structure out of said nuclear reactor building through said opening. The said receptacle inherently provides the protection for the spent fuel pool because it surrounds the internal structure and moves with the said structure during handling. Said receptacle also inherently provides cushioning of impact of the contained internal structure. The specific limitation in claim 2 regarding a "guide provided to the protective measure for carrying out/in the large scale structural body" reads on Fig. 9(a). Said figure shows the means for guiding the loaded receptacle during its travel out of or into the reactor comprising a lifting machine (numeral 91), a lifting rope (numeral 92), a hook bloc (numeral 93), a hoisting device (numeral 52) and a lifting balance (numeral 51). The loaded receptacle is lifted by the hoisting device from the reactor building through an opening provided by a lifting rope rolling system shutter (numeral 62).

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. References B, C and N pertain to lifting of reactor equipment and are relevant to the claimed invention.
